Agencies Combine For Conservation

The County of San Bernardino and 16 of its communities have bonded together to educate the public on conservation. The committee, known as Zero Waste Communities of San Bernardino, (ZWC) works to provide information on solid waste management to reduce the amount of trash heading to landfills. The most recent project is the creation of their web site at www.zerowastecommunitites.org.

The group's web site was revamped to be more user-friendly and appealing. The site has information on the program's efforts, ways to divert waste from the landfills, a calendar of community conservation events, and access to conservation guides for both the residential and business community. The site will also soon sport an on-line database of the committee's "Reuse Guide", which provides names and locations of businesses that take in and/or sell used items, thereby diverting the material away from landfills.

ZWC is made up of the cities of Adelanto, Apple Valley, Barstow, Big Bear Lake, Colton, Fontana, Grand Terrace, Hesperia, Highland, Loma Linda, Rialto, San Bernardino, Twentynine Palms, Victorville, Yucaipa, and Yucca Valley; and San Bernardino County.
